The Comptroller says that the agreement should be executed only by the proprietors having absolute Control over the money By subpara (b) of para 9 of the Kanarese Will printed in the reading portion of G. O of 31st May 1910, the Committee has ~~only~~ power to the management of only the interest accruing from this investment but not the principal As such it is doubtful whether the Committee or its Secy can be considered as "proprietors having absolute Control over the money". Mr K Veerabasavayya, Howry Secy to the Committee, states that it is neither possible nor necessary to get the executors to execute the agreement as they, having given away some documents and cash to the Committee of management, have ceased to have any interest in the matter any valid objection to the receipt of the amount from the Secretary on behalf of the Committee of management. In the circumstances of the case it is the Committee of management that have to undertake the observance of the conditions. Para 4 of the agreement may have to be suitably altered, the Secretary binding himself and the three members of the Committee and producing a copy of the Committee's proceedings empowering him to do so. It may however be noted that all these precautions would be superfluous as under S 13 of the Mus. Reg. the Committee will be subject to even more stringent conditions. A power however to withhold payment of interest will have to be necessary.

The executive however cannot be said to have discharged their duties correctly. They have illegally delegated their powers to the Committee.
